A story of humble life in an Italian fishing village, dealing with phases of existence to which most American readers are strangers. The air of simplicity and sincerity which seems entirely to permeate the story—to enter into the character of its actors, and even to influence the diction and style of the narrative—helps to make of this work a charming piece of literature, which will be welcomed and admired by all lovers of the better forms of fiction.

NOTES IN SEASON.

FLEMING H. REVELL, New York and Chicago, will publish immediately two daintily bound monographs of Prof. Henry Drummond's, entitled "The Perfected Life: the greatest need of the world," and "Love—the Supreme Gift: the greatest thing in the world." Also a new work by Rev. F. B. Meyer, "Christian Living," and "Seven Years in Ceylon; stories of mission life," by Mary and Margaret W. Leitch.

THE CENTURY Co. have just issued "Laudes Domini for the Prayer-Meeting," completing Dr. Charles S. Robinson's admirable series of hymn-books for the church, chapel, Sunday-school, etc., all grouped under the general title of "Laudes Domini." While in a measure a selection from the former books of the series, it contains much that is new and that Dr. Robinson considered essential for its special purpose.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Forum for September contains a political essay on "Money Interests in Political Affairs," by E. L. Godkin, editor New York Evening Post, in which Mr. Godkin traces to the growth of protection the enormous and alarming increase of the influence of money in politics, which he regards as the most important political fact of our time. In the same number Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama, replies to Senator Chandler's recent article on "The Federal Control of Elections." Elizabeth Stuart Phelps' article in the August number of The Forum on "The Décolleté in Modern Life," has caused such demand for that number that a second edition has been issued.

It is understood that Mr. Frank Hopkinson Smith, the well-known artist who has recently written some charming articles upon Mexican life, will appear as a novelist in the coming year of The Century. A five-part story, "Colonel Carter of Cartersville," by Mr. Hopkinson Smith, will begin in the November number. Dr. Albert Shaw, who recently contributed a striking article on Glasgow in The Century, is to write a series of papers for that magazine during the coming year, on "Municipal Government in Europe and America." He will give studies of metropolitan London and Paris; the municipal system in Berlin and other German cities; recent progress of Italian cities, etc. It will be the endeavor of the author to impart in these papers suggestions of value in our own country.

THE Critic Co., 52 and 54 Lafayette Place, announce that, beginning with the next number (September), they will be the American publishers of Mr. W. T. Stead's London Review of Reviews. This is, as its title indicates, an ingenious time-saving and labor-saving device, for which busy literary people should be duly appreciative. Besides the extracts and abridgments from the magazines and reviews, and the comments upon and indexes to their contents, which constitute the raison d'être of the new monthly, each number contains a leading editorial summarizing "The Progress of the World," a frontispiece (usually a portrait), a "character-sketch" of some man or woman toward whom all eyes are directed at the time, and a special article with illustrations. The price of single copies is 20 cents. Back numbers (January to August) may be obtained at The Critic office.

In the September number of the English Illustrated Magazine will appear an account of Osterley Park, the residence of the Earl of Jersey, the newly appointed Governor of New South Wales. The article was written by the late Miss Balch, the American author. Mr. Frederick Hawkins, for many years editor of the Theatre, contributes a paper on the Beefsteak Room at the Lyceum Theatre. The Hon. Maude Stanley writes on "Servants," and Mr. Spearman on the identification of criminals in France. The latter article, which is illustrated from government photographs, fully describes the way in which criminals are recognized in that country. Mr. Woodhall, M.P., supplies a paper on "Potteries in Rhineland," illustrated by Mr. Harry Furniss. Mr. Marion Crawford contributes an article on Philippine Welser; and Mr. Noble deals with the question of "Education and the Working Man," concerning which he has had some practical experience.

The article containing the mineral springs proper was read before the Medical Society of California, April 20, 1889, and awarded the annual prize of the Society. *Bailey, Gilbert S., D.D. The word and works of God. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., 1890. 255 p. 16°, pap., 30 c.

Bain, F. W. Dmitri: a romance of old Russia. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. 3+279 p. S. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 58.) pap., 50 c. Demetrius or Dmitri, the base-born usurper of the Czar's throne in the early part of the seventeenth century, is an historical character. He was a wandering monk who learned soldiering from the Cossacks, and pretending to be a son of Ivan the Terrible, overthrew Boris and Feodor Godunoff and reigned for awhile in their stead. A Russo-Polish romance, surcharged with local color and Slavonic sentiment. Its barbaric and reckless savagery is well sustained. Dmitri is also a daring, unprincipled lover.

Ballou, Emma L. Lessons in right doing. V. 1, Stories and talks. N. Y., Teachers' Publishing Co., 6 Clinton Pl., 1890. c. 171 p. D. bds., 42 c.

The author has sought to present the principles which underlie all right actions in such a plain and simple form as to be easily understood by young children. Most of the subjects are presented through incidents and stories which relate experiences that are familiar to boys and girls; and the lessons to be inculcated are blended in such a manner as to cause the pupils to understand the virtues portrayed, and how to overcome their own bad habits. Designed as a supplementary reader. Contains a suggestive introduction by N. A. Calkins.

Collins, Mabel. The confessions of a woman. N. Y., J. W. Lovell Co., [1890]. 262 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 111.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

These are autobiographical confessions of a very beautiful painter whose experience of three short years of married life and of the shallowness of men and women leads her to a hopeless pessimistic estimate of life. Very morbid in tone, and undoubtedly originating in an undigested reading of "The journal of Marie Bashkirtseff."

Colquhoun, M. J. Every inch a soldier. N. Y., G. Munro, [J. W. Lovell Co., 1890.] 286 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1469.) pap., 20 c.

Custer, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Following the guidon. N. Y., Harper, 1890. 16+341 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The greater part of this volume of reminiscences of army life on the frontier has the scene laid in Kansas when that part of the country was considered the far West. The stories naturally cluster around General Custer, and embody details of his campaigns. Sometimes he is the speaker—a graphic letter from his pen supplying a bit of description of some event of which he was an eye witness. Mrs. Custer has a racy, dashing style of narration. Her reminiscences include many amusing adventures, bright pictures of the army in camp and on the march, descriptions of buffalo hunting, droll tales told by the soldiers, and phases of frontier life now fast disappearing.

Diehl, Mrs. Anna Randall. A practical Delsarte primer. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1890. c. 66 p. S. (School bulletin pubs.) cl., 50 c.

The author is a teacher of elocution. This treatise was prepared to meet the wants of pupils, and has been successfully used in manuscript for four years. It is a practical exposition and application of the Delsartean principles of expression. It may be studied alone or in connection with any treatise on elocution.

Ecilaw, Ary. Her royal lover: a novel; tr. by Mrs. N. T. Laycock. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1890.] 345 p. D. (Primrose ed.) pap., 50 c.

The action is supposed to take place at the little court of Thessaly. The king of Thessaly, who is a widower, loses his heart to Madame de Mineleko, the wife of the ambassador from Caucasus. The lady repulses his suit, but her husband believes her guilty, and publicly horse-whips her. After this she obtains a divorce and becomes the morganatic wife of the king, who for state reasons deserts her almost at the altar. A murder and other sensational incidents add to the interest.

Edwards, M. Betham. For one and the world. N. Y., J. W. Lovell Co., [1890.] 7-340 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 115.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

honor. Nadine, the doctor, is full of plans and work for all who need her. Her motto is, "For one and the world." She works for the world by always doing the task that is nearest. The descriptions of the servants of a rich establishment enliven the sometimes rather sombre narrative.

"The epoch of which this volume professes to treat embraces a period of about 300 years (B.C. 164 to A.D. 135) and has an intimate bearing on one of the most momentous turning-points in the history of the world. The first half of this period is almost coincident with the formation of the great confederation of Mediterranean states under the supremacy of Rome—a confederation which constituted the most important external preparation for the success of Christianity; the second half is coincident with the birth, development and primitive organization of the Christian faith."—Preface.

It is accidentally discovered that the little old church in Thorbury town, an out-of-the-way parish of England, contains a copy of the Bishops' Bible of 1563, printed on vellum. It is in a state of great dilapidation, and its restoration is entrusted to experts who prove dishonest. The quiet rector, the irate squire, the pig-headed chief warden of the parish, who fears Romanism is getting into Thorbury church, and two young couples, are the chief actors in a quiet country drama full of faint bits of description of village and home life.

The scene is a fertile, beautiful spot in sunny France. An impecunious vicomte and a wealthy quarry-owner make an agreement to marry the titled son to the rich and pretty daughter. By unforeseen circumstances the young couple do not meet until the wedding-day. The means taken by the high spirited young vicomtesse to avoid her husband, and the various little ruses of both families to bring the young bride and groom together, make a pretty, poetic story.

Walford, L. B. The havoc of a smile. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1890.] 163 p. D. (Lovell's Westminster ser., no. 12.) pap., 25 c.

Gregory Pomfret is a member of a fashionable family, twenty years of age, and so awkward that his mother and sisters are ashamed of him. Beatrice Andover, a rich, young, and beautiful cousin, visits the Pomfrets, and pities the solitary, neglected Gregory. She talks to him on every possible occasion, rides with him, and in a general way makes herself agreeable. The inevitable consequence follows; Gregory is madly in love with his fair cousin. His cousin, however, is engaged to some one else, and a succession of serious incidents are the result.

White, Sallie Joy. Cookery in the public schools. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1890.] c. 173 p. il. D. cl., 75 c.

This is (1) An outline history of the origin and growth of the movement for the industrial education of girls. (2) An argument for the usefulness of public cooking-schools pointed by many instances of the good they have done in Boston. (3) An appeal for the adoption of the school-kitchen by every city and town in the country. (4) A course of cooking lessons based upon those given in the Boston schools. These lessons include not only the how but the why of a great many things. They inculcate the necessity of personal cleanliness, economy and attractive service.

THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

At the beginning of the week it looked as if a crisis in the fate of the International Copyright Bill might be reached at any moment. It was generally understood that it was the intention of the Committee on Patents to call the bill up in the House on Tuesday, the 26th. This report, widely circulated, brought together in Washington a number of literary men, and the galleries in the House were filled on Tuesday morning with the friends of the measure. The tedious fight which set in over whether or not the Lard Bill had the right of way as the unfinished business, soon showed that there was no chance for copyright that day.

Mr. Butterworth, Chairman of the Patents Committee, which has charge of the bill, was asked in the afternoon what its chances were. "Well," he answered, "it was Mr. Simonds' hope that he would get a chance to call it up in the morning hour; but you know the morning hour has got away from us so far that is doubtful whether we shall ever catch up with it again. If we do, our committee will, I understand, be the next one called, and the rest of us have consented that Mr. Simonds shall be given the chance to get his bill up. That is as much encouragement, as I can offer you on the subject."

More sanguine friends of the bill still believe that there is a possibility of its being called up within a few days, and we hope then to be able to give news of its having been promptly passed, as it no doubt will be if it once obtains a hearing, its enemies having, either through indifference or through having their arguments fully refuted, grown fewer every day.

THE important sale of the entire stock of Robert Carter & Brothers is announced to take place on Tuesday, Sept. 23, at 10 A.M., at the auction-rooms of Bangs & Co., 739 and 741 Broadway. It consists of the stereotype plates and in many cases of the copyright of books published by this firm, and of books bound and in sheets. The attention of those dealing in this line of books is called to this valuable catalogue, one of the most important in its entirety recently put upon the market. It offers an unusual opportunity to buyers to lay in for the fall trade a long list of books of tested merit and popularity. The imprint of Robert Carter & Brothers has always been an endorsement of a book's worth and character. Buyers and readers of semi-religious novels and Sunday-school books, of devotional and theological works, have invariably turned to their catalogue confident that they would there find the best in certain lines. One is impressed anew with the standard character of their publications in glancing down the list of advertised names, which embraces their more prominent authors. Among the works offered are those of Drs. Hodge, McCosh, Macduff, Pierson, Guthrie and Richard Newton; of Spurgeon, Jonathan Edwards and D'Aubigné; the writings of A. L. O. E., Agnes Giberne's stories, the favorite "Bessy Books," Mrs. Drinkwater Conklin's novels, the world-famous stories of Miss Warner, and other volumes equally attractive. The date of the sale should not be forgotten, Sept. 23, to which day it has been unavoidably postponed from Sept. 16, as first advertised.

A LEIPZIG correspondent makes the interesting suggestion that the American book trade has heretofore overlooked the importance of Germany as a market for its best literature. Thus far the American publisher feels that he has done enough when he has sent his books to an agent in London. But it is pointed out that the London agent addresses himself only to the English public, and pays little or no regard to the conditions for trade in Germany or anywhere else on the continent. This circumstance, and the fact that according to German ideas our prices—that is, of scientific books—are very high, are the reasons why even very important American publications remain comparatively unknown in Germany. Yet there appears to be a possible market in Germany, which could be developed into a paying one. Our correspondent cites as an instance the fact that in a short time he sold one hundred and twenty copies of a $10 book, and five copies of a $75 book, both American publications. He thinks that if American publishers would meet the German booksellers half way, a good market might be established. It would be necessary to establish a central agency in Leipzig, in charge of one conversant with American and German methods, where American books could be sent direct, independent of London. The suggestion is worthy of consideration

A PERAMBULATING BOOK EXHIBITION.

PUSHED to the wall by excessive competition, commerce, says a correspondent to the N. Y. Tribune, has had recourse not only to national, special and international, but also to floating exhibitions. Germany was the first in this last field, and Spain has followed suit by sending to America a vessel loaded with samples of every product or article that Spain could have to sell, and which stopped for many days at Rio Janeiro, Montevideo, Buenos Ayres, Valparaiso, etc., at which places the inhabitants were invited to come aboard and examine the samples exhibited. An improvement on, or rather a modification of, this new method of advertising has just been made by the French. They could hardly send floating exhibitions among their neighbors of Switzerland or Italy, so they devised a system of "perambulating" expositions. They began with library articles, inasmuch as the book section in the latest Paris Exhibition did not have the success it merited. While crowds congregated around the sumptuously decorated sections of perfumery, furniture, mechanical dolls and Paris notions, the marvels in lithography, etchings, engravings and typography were relegated to the second floor of the Palace of Liberal Arts, where few people took the trouble of ascending to look at them. That section was so utterly neglected by the public that in the hope of attracting visitors the administration of the Exposition caused a piano to be placed there, but the pianist played to an empty hall most of the time.

That indifference led a large book firm in Paris—the most ancient and the most flourishing perhaps, that of Messrs. Firmin-Didot—to start the plan of a perambulating exhibition, not so much in the interest of the wealthy and successful firm as in that of France herself. This kind of exhibiting is done by railroad travelling, and few appliances are needed. In a dozen large show-cases resting upon movable iron supports, easily folded, are methodically arranged specimens of all the volumes published by the Didot firm. They are numerous and embrace the whole circle of human knowledge; dictionaries, works of imagination, science, art, history, illustrated papers, etc. The whole stock of the exhibition does not weigh more than 4000 pounds. It is sent into all cities where French books and style of publications are not sufficiently known. Advertisements in the local newspapers inform the inhabitants that on such a day and in such a hotel the exhibition will be open, and the employé who accompanies the exposition furnishes all necessary explanations. No books or other lithographic and typographic productions are sold on the spot, but specimens are to be seen and orders can be given. It is expected that by comparing the genuine with the counterfeited articles which are published in large quantities, at Leipzig especially, and in European cities, that foreigners will see the superiority of the real French article, and send their orders directly to French publishers. If this perambulating exhibition proves successful for the book and printing industry, it will be tried in others.

YES, VERY LITERARY.—Bessie: Are you sure he's literary? Jessie: Yes. Whenever he wishes to see anything he takes off his glasses.—Sun.

"I SEE that a lot of bookmakers have been indicted." "Good. Any poets in the batch?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE HARPER CHANGES.

THE membership of the firm of Harper & Brothers has been reduced by the retirement of Philip J. A. Harper, who had been connected with the house for forty eight years. Mr. Harper's work, notes the N. Y. Times, was in the financial department of the house, and he retired because he felt that his health demanded that he should be entirely free from business cares. In the hope of recovering his health, he intends now to take a trip to California, and possibly to spend several years in travel. During almost the entire period of his connection with the house he was a resident of Hempstead, L. I., where he was married when a young man, and where the family of his wife lived. He is now sixty-eight years old, and for nearly thirty years it was his habit to come in to business daily from Hempstead.

His retirement reduces the membership of the firm to six—Joseph W. Harper, the son of Joseph Wesley Harper; John W. Harper, the son of John Harper; J. Henry Harper, the grandson of the original Fletcher Harper; John Harper, the son of J. Abner Harper; James Thorne Harper, the son of James Harper, and Horatio R. Harper, the son of John W. Harper. Mr. Philip Harper is the son of James Harper, one of the original firm, and now only himself and J. Abner Harper are living on the retired list of the house. All of the other members of the house who have passed away were retired by death while in the harness.

Mr. Harper's life at Hempstead has been quite interesting. He always took a lively part in the affairs of that village, and for many years he has occupied the honored position of Village Trustee. His purse has ever been open to public needs at his home, and among the other enterprises which owed their existence there to his endowment is the hook and ladder company, which bears his name, and of which he is still personally a member. Through his efforts also a fire-engine was secured for the village, and a fire department was organized. In return for what he had done in this field the department and the villagers presented him with a beautiful silver cup, and he reciprocated by extending most generous hospitalities to all the members of the department and the leading citizens of the village.

Although always unostentatious, Mr. Harper has long been regarded as one of the most public-spirited residents of Hempstead, and his private benefactions have been bestowed there with the most liberal hand. One of his latest gifts was of two beds in the Children's Home at Minneola. He has also been quite active in the affairs of the Methodist Church, and is regarded as a strong and valuable churchman by the leaders of that denomination. A comfortable fortune will enable him to pass his time as he may desire, and there seems to be no doubt among his friends that if his intended search for health shall be successful he will soon again quarter himself at Hempstead.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

"JULIEN GORDAN" is now acknowledged to be the mask for Julia Crugar, or as society knows the lady, Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger, who no longer denies she is the author of "The Diary of a Diplomat," one of the brightest and cleverest novels of the day.

WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR has employed artists at the expense of something like $10,000 to illustrate one copy of each of his novels. These copies form a private édition de luxe, each one being labelled "My Personal Copy," and occupying a prominent place in his library.

JAMES JEFFREY ROCHE will probably succeed the late John Boyle O'Reilly as editor of the Boston Pilot. He has for some years been the associate editor of that journal. He is the President of the Papyrus Club of Boston, and is known to the public as the author of some stirring poetry.

THE name of Lucia Gray Swett, author of the little book on New England breads, recalls, says the Boston Transcript, familiar names to old Bostonians. Miss Swett is a granddaughter of Colonel Samuel Swett, the first commander of the old New England Guards, and a great-granddaughter of Lieutenant-Governor William Gray, whose daughter, Lucia Gray, was married to Colonel Swett. Mrs. Alexander, of Florence, Italy, mother of the gifted Francesca, was also known in Boston in her girlhood as Lucia Gray Swett.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

WE have just received the quarterly bulletin for July, 1890, of the Boston Public Library, showing titles of new books added during April, May and June, with bibliographical notes, etc.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have prepared descriptive catalogues of books adapted for school libraries. Every school library bought under State auspices must come from a list prepared by the State Superintendent. The Houghton-Mifflin Co. catalogues describe (1) size, styles of binding, type, illustrations; (2) tell as accurately as possible what the book contains; (3) give the opinions of competent critics upon the books in question.

HOLMAN & Co. have issued their fall catalogue of family and pulpit Bibles. It shows a considerable advance over previous efforts in this direction. Bindings which were new last year have been put down upon goods of a cheap grade, and a considerable number of new and elegant bindings are shown for their better Bibles this year. It is the intention of the publishers to send a copy of their catalogue to every bookseller in the United States, but if any dealer is omitted in the distribution he can obtain a copy by addressing a postal request for same.

COPYRIGHT NOTES.

A TELEGRAPHIC despatch from Washington to the New York Tribune, dated Aug. 24, states that a number of well-known residents of Washington have united in a petition to the House of Representatives, urging the passage of the International Copyright Bill. The enactment of such a law, the petitioners assert, would give a stimulus to American authors. In the absence of such a law, American authors are declared to be subject to an unfair competition with foreign literature. Among the signers are Dr. Welling, of Columbian University, Librarian Spofford, Bishop Keane of the Catholic University, Admiral Porter, George Kennan, Professors Newcomb, Langley, Goode and Mendenhall, General Greely, Dr. Richards of Georgetown University, General Boynton, Simon Wolf, Professor Alexander Melville Bell, Garrick Mallery, Dr. Swan B. Burnett and Dr. N. S. Lincoln.

OBITUARY.

FREDERICK HENRY HEDGE.

THE death is announced of the venerable Prof. Frederick Henry Hedge, D.D., LL.D., for many years senior professor of Harvard University. He died in his eighty-fifth year at his home in Cambridge, Mass., on Thursday, the 21st inst., where he was born Dec. 12, 1805.

After the completion of his early education Prof. Hedge enjoyed the opportunities of a long residence in Europe, whither in 1818 he accompanied the historian George Bancroft. He returned to Cambridge in 1823 and graduated at Harvard in 1825. He was ordained in West Cambridge in 1829, and in 1835 he took charge of the Independent Congregational Church in Bangor, Me., where he resided until 1850, when he was called to the Westminster Church in Providence, R. I. Later, after a two years' pastorate in Brookline, Mass., Prof. Hedge was appointed Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the Harvard Divinity School, becoming at the same time editor of the Christian Examiner, which was then the chief organ of the Unitarian Church. His appointment to the Professorship of German Language and Literature, which followed in 1872, was a place for which his early education and his numerous contributions to English literature had admirably fitted him. Prof. Hedge's literary works have been widely circulated, establishing for him a national reputation. His more prominent works are "Prose Writers of Germany," published in 1845; "Liturgy for the Use of the Church" (1853); "Reason in Religion" (1865); "Primeval World of Hebrew Tradition" (1870); "Hours with German Classics" (1886); "Martin Luther and Other Essays" (1888); and in the same year he published, in connection with Mrs. A. L. Wister, a delightful volume from the German, "Metrical Translations and Poems."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE PILOT PUBLISHING CO., of Boston, and not Roberts Bros., are now the publishers of the works of the late John Boyle O'Reilly.

STREET & SMITH have ready in their Secret Service Series a clever detective story, "Muerlamma, or, the poisoned pin," by Marmaduke Dey; and in the Select Series, "The Daughter of the Regiment," by Mrs. Mary A. Denison.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. announce an English translation of Henrik Jaeger's "Life of Ibsen." The work is from the pen of Mr. William Morton Payne, who has reproduced the profuse poetic extracts of the original with singular felicity—a task for which his previous exercise in translating Björnson's "Sigurd Slembe" admirably fitted him. The volume will be illustrated with four portraits of Ibsen, a portrait of his wife, and views of his boyhood home, etc.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish in October a work by Prof. Mahaffy, entitled "The Greek World under Roman Sway." It is intended as a sequel to the same author's "Greek Life and Thought from the Age of Alexander to the Roman Conquest." Free use has been made of the works of contemporary writers such as Plutarch, Dion, Chrysostom, Josephus, Pliny, and also of various books of the New Testament which throw light upon the political and social state of Greece and Asia Minor.

THE lately revived firm of Derby & Miller announce an important publication by Mr. Frederick W. Seward, called "Seward in Washington," which takes up the life of the great statesman and orator where it is left in his "Autobiography and Letters." It includes his senatorial career, his connection with the War of the Rebellion, the administrations of Lincoln and Johnson, his journey round the world, and the circumstances of his life to its close.

J. S. OGILVIE sends out a notice to the trade that he has transferred to John W. Lovell, otherwise the United States Book Company, the following series heretofore published by him: The Fireside Series, The Dora Thorne Series, The Red Cover Series, The Surprise Series, and The Champion Detective Series, all in paper; also The Favorite Edition of cloth books, and The People's Library, quarto, paper. Mr. Ogilvie will hereafter publish only the works of American authors.

LEE & SHEPARD announce the publication of a library to be called Good Company Series. This series will be issued in monthly parts, each number to be complete in itself, and will consist of choice works by some of the best American and foreign authors, upon various subjects, including fiction, biography, history, essays, etc. The initial volume of the series, "The Blind Men and the Devil," by Phineas, is now ready. It will be followed by "In Trust, or Doctor Bertrand's Household," by Amanda M. Douglas, and "Three Million Dollars," by Oliver Optic.

THE New York Tribune pertinently asks: "Why doesn't some American publisher bring out the works of Thackeray and Dickens, in cheap form with large type and paper covers? There are, of course, editions which are not expensive, but which still cost too much for many a would-be purchaser. It would be well to sell such cheap editions not only in the set, but by separate volumes. Why should not fiction like this be as easily available as the unspeakable trash with which the news-stands are filled? Arrangements could doubtless be made for the publication of such editions."

THE D. LOTHROP Co. have just issued a charming book for boys in Lieut. H. E. Rhoades' "Around the World with the Blue Jackets." It tells how the U. S. ship-of-war Iroquois displayed the American flag in foreign waters, immediately after the close of the Civil War. The author has been for many years in the naval service. Another new book for readers both young and old just ready is "Our Early Presidents, Their Wives and Children." Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, the author, has taken infinite pains to secure a complete set of authentic likenesses for her book. They are nearly all reproductions of paintings and miniatures in the possession of the Presidential families.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING Co. will publish in October a dainty little volume, with the striking title "The Love-Letters of a Portuguese Nun," translated from the French by Miss Josephine Lazarus. These love-letters are not works of the imagination, but were written early in the seventeenth century by a Portuguese nun of rare beauty to a French officer. "Not of Her Father's Race" is the title of a novel by William T. Meredith which they also announce. It is the story of a girl whose mother was a mulatto, whose father was a white man, and who was herself as white as her father. The scene is laid in the South and in New York City, and the story is entirely contemporaneous.

CHARLES E. MERRILL & Co. make the important announcement in the Critic that they have concluded arrangements with Mr. Ruskin's English publisher, by which they will hereafter be the only authorized publishers in America of Ruskin's books. Prof. Charles Eliot Norton, of Harvard, has engaged to write an introduction to each volume of the new edition (the Brantwood), which will be printed from type and on paper selected by the author himself before his recent illness, and with illustrations prepared under his own supervision, and will be bound in accordance with his suggestions. The introductions, from the pen of one of Mr. Ruskin's closest friends and most acute and sympathetic critics, will explain the purpose for and the circumstances in which the several books were written, and will doubtless make this the standard edition of the writings of the most delightful English stylist of the century.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish, September 6, a new and complete issue of the works of James Russell Lowell, uniform with the Riverside ed. of Longfellow's and Whittier's works. They will be embraced in ten volumes, and will comprise all that Mr. Lowell has written up to date that he wishes to preserve, and will include several addresses and papers not contained in his volumes hitherto published. Vols. 1 and 2 of "Literary Essays" are now ready. A limited Large-Paper ed. in the same style with the Large-Paper ed. of Longfellow's works is also announced—the whole edition of three hundred copies being subscribed for already. They promise for the same date "Economic and Social History of New England, 1620-1789" (2 v.), by William B. Weedon, a writer on economic subjects and a well-known manufacturer of Providence; "V. 10, Architectural Antiquities, pt. 1," in the Gentleman's Magazine Library; a Popular ed. in one volume of "Nature, Lectures and Addresses," and "Representative Men," two notable books of Ralph Waldo Emerson, heretofore published separately; a new Family ed. of Owen Meredith's "Lucile;" Thomas Bailey Aldrich's novel, "Prudence Palfrey," in the Riverside Paper Series, and some new calendar books, which look like little advance couriers of the holiday season, made up of selections from the writings of Robert Browning and Mrs. Whitney.

A VOLUME on Cardinal Newman by Mr. R. H. Hutton will be published next month as the first volume of Messrs. Methuen's new series, "English Leaders of Religion."

ADMIRERS and collectors of Cruikshank will be glad to learn that Thackeray's article in the Westminster Review on Cruikshank will be shortly republished by Messrs. Bell. The introductory notice will be from the pen of Mr. F. G. Stephens.

SWAN SONNENSCHNEIN & Co. are about to add to their Social Science Series a translation of M. Fustel de Coulanges' Essai sur l'Origine de la Propriété Foncière, edited by Prof. Ashley, of Toronto, with an introduction estimating the character and value of the contributions of Fustel de Coulanges to economic history. The translation has been undertaken with the sanction of Mme. Fustel de Coulanges, and will enjoy the benefit of her criticism.

THE correspondence of Hans Christian Andersen is about to be published by Dean & Son. Letters will be included from Charles Dickens and a great many other celebrities. Mr. Forster in his "Life of Dickens" expressed much regret that he was unable to procure any letters which passed between Andersen and Dickens. This new volume will contain most, if not all, of the correspondence which Mr. Forster was unable to procure.

MR. ELKIN MATHEWS, London, will publish next month "George Meredith, Novelist and Poet," by Mr. Le Gallienne. The volume will contain an elaborate bibliography by Mr. John Lane, not only of Mr. Meredith's works, but also of the best criticisms of them which have appeared in the magazines and reviews. There will also be a note by W. Morton Fullerton on the fortune of Mr. Meredith's books in America, a portrait of Mr. Meredith, and an illustration of his châlet at Dorking, from a pen-and-ink sketch by his son, Mr. W. M. Meredith.

DEAN & SON have in preparation an important volume of "Souvenirs of the Second Empire," by the Duc de Maugny, formerly Minister for Foreign Affairs. This interesting volume of the reminiscences of a Cabinet Minister is full of anecdotes relating to all that passed amongst the court and society, the clubs and the theatres, in the reign of Napoleon III. It contains also numerous particulars as to the lives of all the celebrities of the period, including the Emperor, General Fleury, the Prince and Princess de Metternich, Baron Haussmann, Von Moltke, Thiers, Guizot, and others.

JOHN C. NIMMO, London, sends us the prospectus of a new uniform and limited edition of the works of the late Sir William Stirling-Maxwell, Baronet, that he will publish this coming autumn and winter. The chief edition is a small 4to, in cloth; but a few large paper copies will be printed, with the engraved illustrations in duplicate, and the initial letters and rules of the text printed in red. The first four volumes issued will be devoted to the "Annals of the Artists in Spain," the fifth volume to "The Cloister Life of the Emperor Charles the Fifth," and a later volume to "Miscellanies."

MESSRS. CHAMBERS will publish immediately a companion volume to "Great Thinkers and Workers," entitled "Beneficent and Useful Lives," edited by Mr. R. Cochrane, brief biographies of men who have labored or given money for the good of humanity. Among the names included are Lord Shaftesbury, George Peabody, Sir Josiah Mason, Mr. Andrew Carnegie, Mr. Besant, Arnold Toynbee, Sir J. Y. Simpson, and Dr. Arnold. Mr. Carnegie, in returning the proofs of the sketch of himself, wrote as follows:

5 WEST 51ST STREET, NEW YORK.

MY DEAR MR. COCHRANE: I think yours the fullest and best account of myself that I have yet seen—far too complimentary in a sense, of course, but still correct in facts, etc.

Truly yours,

ANDREW CARNEGIE.

P.S.—The talismanic letters, "W. & R. Chambers," what their works have done for Scotland! My first lessons after learning to read were from their publications. If they publish something of my life, I think "the Scotch lad" has really climbed a little.

NEW BOOKS.

One Summer's Lessons in Practical Perspective.

Told in the Form of a Story for Young People. By CHRISTINE CHAPLIN BRUSH, author of "The Colonel's Opera Cloak" and "Inside Our Gate." With many illustrations. One vol., 16mo, cloth, 75 cents. A delightful book by a popular author. It is not only instructive, but extremely interesting.

AMERICAN EDITIONS OF TWO POPULAR ENGLISH BOOKS.

Idyls of the Field. By Leafy Ways.

Brief Studies from the Book of Nature. By F. A. KNIGHT. With numerous beautiful illustrations and full-page plates by E. T. Compton. 12mo, cloth, $1.50 each.

Delightful reading about out-of-door life. Dealing chiefly with bird life, the work also contains much information about the denizens of English lanes, woods and meadows, written in a very pleasing and agreeable style. Mr. Knight has the happy touch in describing the ways of birds and the aspects of the fields, and a keenness of observation akin to the faculty that was so remarkably developed by Richard Jefferies in "The Gamekeeper at Home" and other books. Not the least important feature of these studies is to create a love for all the lower forms of life by showing their usefulness in one particular or another.

A NEW LIBRARY EDITION.

The House of the Wolfings.

A Tale of the House of the Wolfings and all the Kindreds of the Mark, written in prose and in verse, by WILLIAM MORRIS, author of "The Earthly Paradise." 12mo, Oxford style, $2.00.

This is one of those rare creations of genius which reproduce the life and manners of a remote past and of peoples of a grand kind that civilization cannot assimilate.

Days and Hours in a Garden.

By E. V. B. A new edition, printed on antique paper, and adorned with pictorial head and tail pieces, composed of sketches taken from the nooks and corners in the garden described by the author. 12mo, white cloth, gilt top, $2.00.

The seventh edition. A new preface has been added, and several new illustrations from the pencil of E. V. B. The book is full of suggestive thoughts on the works of Nature, and displays a deep sympathy with her teachings.

A NEW EDITION.

Sanskrit and Its Kindred Literatures.

Studies in Comparative Mythology. By LAURA E. POOR. A new edition, the third, with a new preface. 16mo, $2.00.

The book goes over ground which has been made new by the modern discoveries in philology and mythology. In fact, there is no one book which contains just what this does—a sketch of comparative mythology, with history enough to make it clear and connected. It creates and fills a place of its own.

Should be ordered at once.
